ANOTHER ERRORLESS GAME

This Time Chicago Is Shut Out, While Indianapolis Makes Fourteen Runs.

Healy Pitches a Great Game-New York at Last Beats Boston-Washington Wins from Philadelphia-Notes About Players.

The crowds around the bulletin-boards yesterday evening were larger than usual, and the venders of the special editions of the evening papers shouted louder than they have been heard to do for some time. The cause was an unusually big victory for the home team-that is, if it be measured by the size of the score. The Chicago club tried their new pitcher, Tener, in yesterday's game, and the result disastrous defeat, although, considering the game which the Indianapolis club played in the field and pitcher's box it is fair to presume that they would have won the game anyhow. For the second game in succession they played without a fielding error, and as Healy pitched with unusual confidence and held the visitors down to three hits, they did not get very near a score. The Chicagos, on the other hand, failed to support their initiate well, and this, together with the nervousness which the young pitcher naturally displayed in the opening innings, made the victory of the locals an overwhelming one. Tener is said to have a good education, and to have thrown up a $2,000 job in order to try his hand at ball-playing. Considering the fact that the home team made but twelve hits while they were scoring fourteen runs, his record yesterday was not so had. He was rather wild, making a number of wild pitches and giving several men their bases on balls. No pitcher, however, can settle down to good work in his first professional game, and much of Tener's wildness may be attributed to the nervousness which he would naturally display under such circumstances. He started out well enough, striking out Hines, the first batter who faced him. The local players, in the meantime, were making the most frantic efforts to rattle him. Healy, in one coacher's box and McGeachy in the other, managed to discover more defects in Tener's manner of delivering the ball in the first inning than the umpire would have discovered in a month. "Look at 'im; his foot's out of the box now," Healy would shout, and Tener is so tall that it looked like an impossible thing for him to take the customary step forward and still remain in the box. An investigation by the umpire of the pitcher's tracks failed to find any violation of the rule, but the coachers kept on referring to the matter in order to rattle him. Tener succeded in getting two strikes on Denny, and apparently had the best of the situation when the Hooscaptain started the enthusiasm by a fine two-bagger to left field. Then Tener shot in a high ball which Daly failed to stop, and Denny got to third. Seery hit a sharp liner squarely at the pitcher, and had he caught it a double play would have resulted, but he only turned the course of the ball. Williamson picked it up and tried to catch Denny at the plate, but failed. Seery stole second, and Bassett took first after being hit by a pitched ball. Glass-cock sent both of them home by a two-bagger against the right-field fence, and on a wild pitch reached third. McGeachy only attempted a sacrifice, but succeded in doing that, and Glasscock came in with the fourth run. Chicago did nothing in her half of the inning, and in the second the home club virtually put an end to the contest by scoring four runs. All of them were made after two outs, and Bassett deserved the chief credit for it. The bases had been filled by Healy's single and two bases on balls, when he drove a beautiful liner to the left-field fence, far down in center, clearing the bases. He made second himself and scored on Glasscock's hit After that Tener steadied down somewhat, and for three innings not a local player reached first. In the sixth Schoeneck made a nice hit, but got no further than first base. In the seventh a run was added through Hines's hit and steal, and Denny's single. The Chicago fielders had a wild-throwing bee in the eighth, and the home club rolled up five more runs. Glasscock began by a hit to Tener, who stopped it, but fell down, and when he had recovered the king of short-stope was on first. McGeachy again gave a sacrifice. Schoeneck hit to Williamson, who made a fine stop, but threw wild to first, and the big first-baseman reached second. In the meantime Glasscock had crossed the plate, but he did not score a run, for he had forgotten all about third base in coming in from second, and had not gone within twenty feet of it. For this piece of absent-mindedness he was called out by Daniels. This made two outs, but Daily hit safe, and Schoeneck came home, although Daily's hit was but for one base. On the throwin Daily started to second and Daly threw wild to Pfeffer, permitting the runner to reach third. Healy then drove a long liner to left center for two bases, and Hines was, for the second time, hit by a pitched ball. Denny brought them both in with a double against the right-field fence. Seery made a little infield bit, and beat the ball to first. Pfeffer made an effort to catch him, but only threw wild, and Denny scored the

The Chicagos made but three hits off Healy, although he gave a number of bases on balls. At critical stages he always pitched well. In the fourth inning, for example, Van Haltren got a base on balls, and Duffy sent him to third with a single against the right fence. Duffy stole second. There were no outs, but Anson flew out to short center, Hines making a beautiful throw home and frightening Van Haltren back to third. Then Pfeffer and Williamson struck out. In the eight Pfeffer opened with a bit, the first he has made in eight games. Burns also got a base on balls, but Williamson and Tener struck out and Daly fouled out. Healy struck out nearly every man in the team. including Anson. Following is the score:

Base-Bail Notes.

McGeachy sacrificed his record yesterday for the sake of runs. That is the kind of playing which makes a man valuable.

Ryan was presented with a handsome bouquet the first time he stepped to the bat. He responded by a hard hit into left field which Seery The Chicago players were very favorably impressed with Tener, notwithstanding the record against him. "I think he has the metal of a good man," said Jimmy Ryan. In the seventh inning, while the Chicagos were at the bat, Ryan amused himself by filling out the bulletin board. He gave the Chicagos nine runs in the seventh inning. The prettiest play of the game was a stop by Glasscock of Van Haltren's grounder in the sixth. Healy and Schoeneck also made good stops. Denny did not get a fielding chance. The Chicagos will make their last appearance of the season here this afternoon. Baldwin is announced as the pitcher for the visitors, and either Burdick or Boyle for the home club. The Capital City Lodge of Knights of Pythias went to Franklin, yesterday, and had a game of base-ball with the K. P. lodge of that place. The Indianapolis club, as usual, was worsted by a close score, 20 to 17. During the first inning the workmen who were engaged in putting up natural-gas pipe, at

A LITTLE MORE OF BAILEY

The President Told that No One Had Confidence in Him or His Abilities.

Some of the Men Upon Whom the Braggart Relied as His Witnesses Are Shawn To Be Unreliable in Political Statements.

For his ranting performance of Wednesday night Baily is being heartily condemned by men of his own party. Indeed, no persons except the Coy gang, in whose behalf as their principal exponent, now that Coy is in the peniteutiary, he made the contemptible attack on General Harrison, and the managers of the Democratic campaign, give him any countenance. The Democratic managers, with characteristic cowardice, dare say nothing openly in upholding the brainless braggart, but they secretly chuckle over the dirty work they prevailed upon him to perform, something that they could get no decent Democrat to do. A Democratic candidate said yesterday: "It was a vile attack, and something that not even Bailey would have done had he sense enough to control his inordinate desire for notoriety. Before I would be guilty of a contemptible and malicious assault upon a caudidate like that Bailey made I would withdraw from the ticket and leave the Democratic party."

Bailey is held in contempt by everybody who has any appreciation of decency, and this fact he fully realized the morning after his speech, for he gave out that he was going to Colorado, and left the city. There are no higher representatives of the decent element in the Democratic party than Wm. Henderson and Alexander B. Conduitt. The latter is chairman of the committee of one bundred, and, like Mr. Henderson, was foremost in the prosecution of the Democrats who forged the tally-sheets. They, like many other Democrats, even those who secured Bailey to make his infamous attack on General Harrison, have no confidence in him, but Mr. Henderson and Mr. Conduitt are brave enough to say so. They knew his presence in the district attorney's office was an obstruction to justice, and on Jan. 10, this year, Mr. Henderson had a conference with Attorney General Garland about the tally-sheet cases in relation to the employment of Judge Clapcol and Captain Eli F. Ritter as assistant counsel for the prosecution. To the President on that occasion Mr. Henderson submitted a petition signed by Alexander B. Couduitt as chairman, on behalf of the executive committee of one hundred, requesting the appointment of Judge Claypool and Captain Ritter for the purposes named. In that petition was the following: With all due respect for the ability of the Hon. Emory B. Sellers, United States district attorney. who has official control of the prosecution in these cases, we feel that the public welfare and public justice demand that he should have able assistance at the approaching trial. Leon O. Bailey is the assistant United States district attorney. He is a man without reputation for ability as a lawyer. He was a member, in the last session, of the indiana State Senate, and in his official capacity favored the appointment to a position as assistant door-keeper in said body of one of the persons who is now under indictment for the offenses aforesaid, and who at the time of such appointment was charged with such offenses, had been arrested and was then under houd for the had been arrested and was then under bond for the same. It was in testimony at the trial had, by an honorable member of the State Senate of the same political faith with Mr. Bailey, that when a protest against said appointment was pending in that body, another one of the persons indicted for the offenses aforesaid, who was generally understood to be the leader in the offenses, said to the witness privately that said appointes must be retained by the Senate in order to keep his mouth closed. Said witness who was so approached denounced the appointment, and demanded the removal of the appointee, but Mr. Bailey urged his retention, and on the floor of the Senate denounced our committee, some of them personally by name, and all of them as a body, and used to-wards our committee the most insulting and oppro-brious language. It is notorious in our community that Mr. Bailey is upon intimate terms and relations with the more prominent among the persons so indicted as aforesaid. There is an utter want of confidence in this community in the ability or disposition on the part of Mr. Bailey to render efficient services in aid of the prosecution in said cases. Judge Claypool was appointed. Bailey was allowed to have nothing to do with the trial, and Coy and Bernhamer were convicted.

About Bailey's Witnesses. The "reliable authorities" cited by Mr. Bailey in his speech of Wednesday night, and whose statements were all dished up in the shape of personal interviews with that ward politician, and not presented as affidavits, are becoming still more clearly exposed as worthless and unimportant ex-railroad employes, for the most part. As a matter of fact, after careful investigation, backed by numerous inquiries, some of the men are not even known, not only among citizens, but among men who have been identified with the railroads for years before the strike of 1877 and who have continued in their employment to the present day. The denial of Mr. Hughes, who is a reliable citizen of Indianapolis, of the words ascribed to him by Bailey, clearly showed to yard and switchmen, as well as citizens, the dishonest manner in which his language had been misrepresented, and in many instances Democrats were yesterday interviewed, who, without hesitation condemned the injustice to Mr. Hughes and the sneaking way in which his real utterances had been tampered with. "I am as hot a Democrat as you will find," said one, "but I am not so bull-headed but what I can see Bailey's little scheme in publishing what he did. He, of course, has a right to talk Democratic doctrines-every man has a right to his opinions-but I can't reconcile myself to commending a downright lie as to what a man has said. That is putting it too strong." Mr. Bailey seems to have confined his interviews to two classes of men, either those who have no standing whatever, when it comes to a question of honesty or dependence in their word, with their past employers, or those who, if they ever existed at all as railroad men, cannot be found among the living or remembered among William Hugo is quoted as having been an en-gineer on the Vaudalia road during the strike, and is further characterized as a fair conscientious man who, in 1884, was a candidate for the Legislature in Marion county, being especially popular with all who knew him. With all these honorable compliments heaped upon him, he is further quoted as stating that General Harrison used the terms "law-breakers" several times, and other language falsely attributed to him. Mr. Hugo, as a man, is known for one thing even among his friends, as was ascertained yesterday, and that is a perfeetly blank record so far as any achievement of success is concerned. It is true that in 1884 he was a candidate for the Legislature in Marion county, but he was then one of the long list of satellites who played second findle to the now "striped" Sim Coy. The popularity referred to by Bailey was confined to the little gang of tally-sheet forgers, who did their best to land him on safe ground by their illegal intrigues, but whose signal failure now is inclined to cast no great honor upon the defeated Hugo, Such has been his very brief public career. As a railroad man, much to his credit, his blank record is a fortunate thing for him, incomuch as, while it does not record any good deed, it fails to produce any great offense that can be laid against his name. He is, however, noted for being a Democrat, no matter what is at stake. "I will generally believe Bill Hugo," said a man yesterday, who has known him for years, "but when it comes to any question that involves politics I want to leave him alone. He is one of the most bull-headed partisans I ever knew, and his prejudices seem to have complete control of his tongue and his actions. wouldn't say a word to harm Bill in any way, but the fact is that there is no more dependence to be placed upon what he says about politics than there is upon the winds. He will say anything for his party ring-leaders, and it seems to be his only ambition to stand well with them. Of course he can best accomplish this by assenting to anything they may conjure up, and that is just what he has done with Bailey. If he could only know it, Bailey is the one who was roped in when he go:

Hugo's interview, for it amounts to nothing. I can take you to lots of railroad men, all of whom know Hugo, who will substantiate all that I have said." Authenthic authority seems to put the socalled testimony of William Shook on a level with that of Hugo, so far as reliability is concerned. His political word seems to rank no higher among those who know him than does that of Hugo. He, too, is a rank partisan, and cares no more for fact than he does for policy when it comes to politics. His soldier record is equally prominent Democratic fathers, is his bosom friend. "I was talking with Shook to-day about his recollection of the strike," said an old employer of his yesterday, "and it is my private opinion that he doesn't know much about it. He said himself to me that he would refuse to make an affidavit, if he were asked, that General Harrison said a dollar a day was good enough for any workingman, and I know him well enough to know he meant what he said."

Warren O'Haver, residing at No. 13 Hosbrook street, was captain on the city police force during the strike, and was present at General Harrison's speech. When questioned as to the character of the men cited by Bailey he said, "I can only say that I never heard of half of them in my life, and if they are actual railroad men I would probably have known of them at least But I heard every word that General Harrison uttered in that speech, and all the charges made by Democrats are downright lies. I am willing at any time to make an affidavit that he did not say a dollar a day was good enough for any workingman. What he did say was this, that since the men couldn't get any more than a dollar a day they had better take that rather than nothing. Again I say that the charges are false, and while none of Bailey's men make affidavits I will make one at any time it is wanted. I was one of the men who was appointed to muster men for special police work, and Captain Forbes and I got together over 400 men. They were all paid $2 a day for their services."

DOINGS OF THE BUSINESS MEN.

The Probable Creation of a Plant Here to Manufacture Steel Cars.

James C. Rutan, James Murison and Wm. H. Turner, of Chicago, of the American Fire-proof Steel Car Company, are in the city looking over the ground and facilities, with a view of establishing a car plant for the construction of steel railway cars, an invention which promises to take the place of the common frame cars now wholly in use. This company is having constructed in the L., N. A. & C. shops, at New Albany, a sample mail-car manufactured of steel. The work is being done under the supervision of government agents. The main feature of the steel care, will be that they are absolutely fire-proof. They will be one-third lighter than the ordinary wooden car, costing 25 per cent. less to build them, and possessing fifty times the strength. Railroad men who have examined their construction, thoroughly indorse them, and all agree they will be the coming dar. The above gentlemen arrived in the city yesterday morning and were busily engaged all day negotiating with Judge Martindale, relative to the purchase of a site to locate a plant. It is almost a certainty that the plant will be established in Indianapolis, the gentlemen saying to a Journal reporter, last evening, that this point was acceptable on account of its splendid railroad facilities, together with those of natural gas. They do not ask that a stock company be organized, as they have the money already in bank for the construction of a plant just as soon as a site can be secured. They will probably remain in the city for several days.

Merchant Tatiors Organize.

The merchant tailors of Indianapolis held a meeting, last night, at the Bates House, and organized an association, to be known as the Merchant Tailors' League. Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Chas. Becker; vice-president, Ed Egan; secretary, Norb Landgraf; treasurer, Edward Foster. The association was formed for purposes of mutual protection and interest, and the intention is to apply for membership to the National Association of Merchant Tailors.

Elected Officers. At a meeting of the stockholders of the Indiana Feed-water Heater and Purifier Company, held at the Bates House, last evening, the following centlemen were elected officers: L. W Hasselman, president; E. C. Atkens, vice-president; W. E. Rockwood, secretary; Wm. Bosson, treasurer. Board of directors: L. W. Hasselman, Jno. T. Dye, E. C. Atkins, W. M. Bleyer, and H. C. Newcomb. The latter gentleman will be the general manager of the company, the operation of which will begin at once.

IN RELIGIOUS CIRCLES.

Important Meetings of the Young Men's Christian Association, The annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association occurs to-morrow night, when the officers, executive committee and three trustees will be elected. A full attendance is desired, as in addition a great deal will be said concerning the work for next year. The teachers' meeting for study of Sunday-school lesson will take place at noon to-day, in the small hall on third floor. It will be led by Secretary Douglas. The young men's gospel song service will occur Sunday afternoon, at 4:15 o'clock. It is to be led by Mr. Douglas, who will speak on the subject, "Keep Within His Keeping." An increasing interest is developing in these meetings. Notes of Churches and Ministers. Rev. T. G. Duval, a recent graduate of the DePauw Theological School, will fill the pulpit of Meridian-street M. E. Church to-morrow

The Methodist ministers of the city and vicinity will meet in the parlors of the Meridianstreet Church at 10 o'clock on Monday morning. The subject for discussion will be, "The Ministers' Vacation.

Rev. J. G. Steineart, newly elected minister of the First German Reformed Church, near corner of Alabama and Market streets, will begin his labors to-morrow. Services morning and evening et the regular hours

Memorial services will be held to-morrow morning at Meridian-street M. E. Church. Dr. Gilbert will deliver an appropriate discourse after making a brief sketch of those who have died during his pastorate.

Dr. James McLeod, of the Second Presby-terian Church, returned with his family yesterday from the East, where the Doctor spent his vacation. He will preach Sunday morning in the lecture-room of the church, the main building not being ready for use.

Amusements.

The Grand Opera-house will open to-night with "The Kitty" as the attraction and an excellent company headed by the popular funmakers. W. A. Mestayer, Theresa Vaughn and Amy Ames. The play is a farce comedy and said to be immensely funny. Among the many capable people that will be seen in the cast is Bob Frazer, the talented stage manager and the well-known comedian; Thos. Wise, who, for a number of years starred in "The Kindergarten," and who will be remembered as having played the tailor with the Madison-square Theater "Private Secretary" Company; W. J. Russell, of vandeville fame, who proved to be too clever a comedian for that class of attractions: Chas. Kirke. who starred for two seasons with the "Tourists;" Miss Jennie Willjams, Marie Ackermann, Gertrude Silvertuorn and a number of other capable and pretty girls

At the Park "Libby Prison" will be seen for the last time to-day. Mr. Edwin F. Mayo opens next Monday with "Davy Crockett," to be followed by his new play, "The Silver Age."

Building Permits.

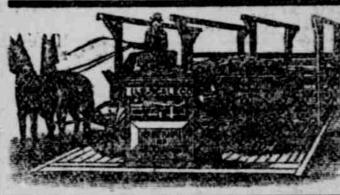

The following building permits were issued yesterday: Robert Long, improvements at No. 81 East Washington street, $600; A. Minter, boiler-room, on California street, near Maryland, $1,000; Laura Hansen, two-story frame cottage, on corner East street and Lincoln lane, $1,394; Eliza J. G. Newson, frame cottage, on Newman street, near North, $700.

Glanders in White County. For some time the town of Monticello has been asking the State Board of Health to investigate the disease of glanders, prevalent among the horses in that locality. Yesterday a telegram was received at headquarters from that place, and Veterinary Surgeon E. H. Pritchard was sent to make an examination. Three horses were reported to have glanders. Exposure and Conviction

The information contained in the report made by the hygienic authorities of the Nation on food adulteration is not only valuable but suggestive. The people of this country are getting to a point where they will not much longer brook the trifling with adulterators. In this connection we wish to say that we believe that the public will not forget the Price Baking Powder Company's effort, heroic and single-handed as it was, to bring the bread tainters of the world to exposure and conviction. The issue of their war was purity in human diet, and the decision of the National Food Analysts was that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder was the one they could recommend to general family use, being free from ammonia, lime and all drug taint.
